

The Indiana Supreme Court Legal History Lecture Series Presents:

Hoosier Justice at Nuremberg

A Free CLE worth 1.3 Credit Hours, Course Number: 109089

March 26, 2008

3:00-4:15 P.M.

Indiana Statehouse

Indiana House Chambers (Statehouse)

(Light refreshments will follow)

At the conclusion of World War II, the victorious Allies were charged with the difficult task of assigning and partitioning blame for the crimes committed by Nazi Germany and the other European Axis powers during the war.

These tribunals, trying German military officers and civilians, convened between 1945 and 1949 in Nuremberg, Germany. This CLE will highlight the service of former Indiana Supreme Court Justices Frank Richman and Curtis Shake who were a part of the American judicial presence.

The program will conclude with a brief overview of current international law regarding war crimes and a moderated discussion.

SPEAKERS:

Ms. Suzanne Bellamy has recently completed a significant research project on Justices Shake and Richman. Her research relied on family sources as well as a new collection of materials at the Bryon Lewis Library at Vincennes University.

Professor Fran Quigley is an adjunct professor at the IU School of Law-Indianapolis in the International Law program, the former executive director of the Indiana ACLU, and the Operations Director for the IU-Kenya Partnership. Dr. Quigley will provide a brief overview of current discussions regarding war crime tribunals, with focus on recent events in Africa.
